LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

Hon. Julius C. Gunter,
Governor of the State of Colorado.

My dear Sir: I have the honor to submit herewith to you the report of the State Historical and Natural History Society of Colorado for the biennial term that ended on November 30, 1916; and to request that it be ordered to be printed.

Very respectfully yours,

GEORGE L. CANNON,
President.

APPROVAL OF THE REPORT

The report (within) of the Curator of the State Historical and Natural History Society of Colorado was approved by the Directors of the Society on December 12, 1916, and referred to the members of the Society in annual meeting.

JOHN PARSONS,
Secretary.

At the annual meeting of the members of the State Historical and Natural History Society of Colorado, held on December 12, 1916, the report of the Curator for the biennial term that ended on November 30, 1916, was submitted, approved, and adopted as the report of the Society for the term; and also was recommended to be printed.

JOHN PARSONS,
Secretary.

BIENNIAL REPORT

OF THE

State Historical and Natural History Society of Colorado

December 1, 1914, to November 30, 1916

REPORT OF THE CURATOR

To the President and Other Directors of the State Historical and Natural History Society of Colorado.

Gentlemen: As Curator of our Society, I submit herein, for your information and consideration, a summarized statement of the various results of the Society's activities in the biennial term that began on December 1, 1914, and ended on November 30, 1916.

The additions that have been made to the Society's collections during the term are not only worthy, large in number and varied in character, but include many acquisitions that are of exceptional value to our organization. As usual, a large portion of these accessions are gifts to the Society.

A distinguishing event during the biennial term was that of establishing the Society in a permanent home in the State's new Museum Building. As mentioned in the report for the biennial term that ended on November 30, 1914, all of the Society's collections that occupied rooms in the eastern section of the basement of the State Capitol were removed into the Museum Building in the last month of that term. This was done at the request of the Board of Capitol Managers; and it was anticipated that the quarters which had been assigned to the Society would be ready within a short time for the installation of our collections. However, there were some unavoidable delays in the work of completing and placing the exhibit-cases and other furniture for the new building. Therefore it was not until late in the spring of 1915 that the work of arranging the collections in their proper abiding-places was begun; and on September 2nd the Society's exhibit rooms were opened to the public.

A part of the additions that were made to the Society's collections during the biennial term here under consideration, are in number, and for the present purposes are classified, as set forth in the following statement:

Books	88
Pamphlets and Leaflets	779
Manuscripts	169
Maps	6
Excerpts from Newspapers	4
Scrap-Books	2
Files of Senate and House Bills, Twentieth General Assembly of Colorado	2
Sundry Printed Items	3
Botanical Specimens	500
Insects	6
Arachnida	2
Spider	1
Tarantula	1
Lizard	1
Elephants' Teeth	2
Ethnological Objects	3
Pictures of Persons, of Places and of Things	355
Historical Objects	22
Total of these accessions	1,946

Besides the accessions that are enumerated in the foregoing, the Society continued to receive and preserve during the term, as in preceding years, a large aggregate of other and valuable historical additions to its collections. These consist of newspapers received regularly, and of some other publications, and of which the number is stated in the following summary:

Colorado Publications—
Daily newspapers	15
Semi-weekly newspapers	2
Weekly newspapers and other weekly publications	168
Bi-weekly publications	1
Monthly magazines	14
Quarterly magazines	2
		202
Publications from other sources—
Daily newspapers	2
Weekly newspapers and other weekly publications	3
Monthly magazines	5
Quarterly magazines	4
		14
Total of these publications		216

As indicated above, the number of newspapers and other publications that the Society was receiving in the beginning of the biennial term was thirty-nine less at the end of the two years. This reduction was due to economy by publishers, to consolidations of newspapers, and to suspensions of publication; and nearly half of the reduction was among publications issued beyond the bounds of Colorado.

The additions to the Society's natural history collections during the term are described in the following paragraphs:

Five hundred species of botanical specimens illustrating the flora of Denver and its immediate vicinity. These accessions were purchased by the Society in the last half of the last month of the biennial term, and could not be duly classified before the end of the term.

Insect.—A Walking Stick (Phasmidæ), found near Fort Morgan, Colorado, by Mr. George Suess, of Fort Morgan, and by him given to the Society.

Insect.—A False Ichneumon (Pelecinus polyturator), a female, found in Denver, by Mr. Samuel Mittleman, of Denver, and by him given to the Society.

Insect.—A False Ichneumon (Pelecinus polyturator), a male, found in Denver, by Mr. Horace G. Smith, of Denver, and by him given to the Society.

Insect.—A Locust-borer (Cyllene robiniæ), found in Denver, by Mr. Horace G. Smith, of Denver, and by him given to the Society.

Insect.—A large moth—Black Witch (Erebus odora), found in Denver, by Mr. Charles A. Hart, of Denver, and by him given to the Society.

Insect.—A wingless Cricket (Orthopteron of the genus Stenopelmatus), found in Boggs, Wyoming, by Mrs. G. M. Bowers, of Denver, and by her given to the Society.

Arachnida.—A Garden Spider (Argiope trifasciata), and young recently hatched, found in Edgewater, Colorado, by Mrs. C. Newman, of Edgewater, and by her given to the Society.

Arachnida.—A Garden Spider (Argiope trifasciata), found in Denver, by Mrs. G. A. Taylor, of Denver, and by her given to the Society.

Arachnida.—A Jointed Spider (order Salpugida), found in Tucson, Arizona, by Mrs. J. J. Lynn, of Tucson. Given to the Society by Mrs. G. A. Taylor, of Denver.

Arachnida.—A Tarantula (genus Mygale), found near Steamboat Springs, Colorado, by Mr. William J. McCausland, of Steamboat Springs, and by him given to the Society. This is an exotic species, probably transported in a bunch of bananas.

Lizard.—A young specimen of the Blue-spotted Skink (Eumeces guttulatus), found near Kit Carson, Colorado, by Mr. W. H. Henderson, of Kit Carson, and by him given to the Society.

A tooth of a mammoth, found in a gravel-pit near Riverside Cemetery, adjoining Denver, and at a depth of about fifteen feet, by William Griffith, of Denver. Purchased from the finder by the Society. The tooth is an exceptionally large one.

A section of a molar tooth of a modern East Indian Elephant, showing the dental pattern of the grinding surface. Given to the Society by Mr. P. C. Fisher, of Denver.

A photographic enlargement from a recent wash-drawing portrait of Kit Carson, and which appears to be a representation of him as in or about the year 1843. The original of this is among the Society's historical collections.

A photographic enlargement from a photo-engraving from a portrait of Ceran St. Vrain, who, for many years, was prominently engaged in the fur-trade in the Pike's Peak country. The original of this is among the Society's historical collections. Our village of St. Vrain, in Weld County, is at the site of the trading-post of St. Vrain, which was built by this man and the Bent Brothers, and named for him.

A photographic enlargement from a photo-engraving from a portrait of Dr. A. Wislizenus, a man of scientific attainments, who made a tour from St. Louis, Missouri, into the Rocky Mountain country, in the year 1839; and in his journey he traversed the eastern part of the area of our State. A print from the photo-engraving from his portrait is among the Society's historical collections.

A photographic enlargement from a wood-engraving from a depiction of John C. Fremont addressing some Indian chieftains at Fort Laramie on July 1, 1842, when he was on his first expedition into the Rocky Mountain country. The original of this is among the Society's historical collections.

A photographic enlargement from a photo-engraving from a daguerreotype of Captain John W. Gunnison, of the United States Army. Captain Gunnison was the commander of an expedition, in 1853, to locate a route for a Pacific Railway between the 37th and 38th parallels, and traversing, from east to west, the central part of the area of Colorado. While engaged in this work, he and several of his assistants were killed by Indians, near Sevier Lake, in Utah, on October 26, 1853. Our Gunnison River, Gunnison County, and Gunnison City, were named for him. A print from the photo-engraving from his portrait is among the Society's historical collections.

Six photographic enlargements from photographs of a like number of pioneers who were actively identified with the founding of the City of Denver, in 1858, viz: Aduah French, Frank M. Cobb, General William Larimer, E. P. Stout, Andrew Sagendorf, and Roswell Hutchins. The originals of these photographs are among the Society's historical collections.

A photographic enlargement from a photograph of John Denver Stout, who was the first boy born in Denver of white parents. The original of this is among the Society's historical collections.

A photographic enlargement from a photograph of John C. Moore, who was Denver's first Mayor. He served from December, 1859, to October, 1860, inclusive, under a makeshift city-government "authorized" by the provisional territorial-government of the "Territory of Jefferson." The original of this is among the Society's historical collections.

A photographic enlargement from a photograph of Benjamin Holladay, who was the general manager and chief owner of the Holladay Overland Mail & Express Company, which operated, in the period of our Civil War, from Atchison, Kansas, to the Pacific Coast, by way of Denver and Salt Lake City. The original of this is among the Society's historical collections.

A photographic enlargement from a print from a negative from a wood-engraved portrait of "Wild Bill," otherwise William Hickox, a typical "bad man" who flourished for a decade or so after our Civil War. The negative from the wood-engraving is among the Society's historical collections.

A photographic enlargement from a print from a wood-engraved portrait of Major T. T. Thornburgh, of the United States Army, and who was killed in an engagement with Colorado Ute Indians in their uprising in 1879. The original of this is among the Society's historical collections.

A photographic enlargement from a photo-engraved portrait of G. Nordenskiold, a Swedish savant, who, in the year 1892, explored many of the buildings of "Cliff Dwellers" in the far-southwestern section of our State. One of the results of his investigations is his fine book entitled The Cliff Dwellers of the Mesa Verde, in Colorado. No better treatment of the subject of his large volume yet has been produced. The original of this photograph is among the Society's historical collections.

A framed half-length life-size portrait of the late Rev. Myron W. Reed, a noted Denver clergyman. Given to the Society by Mrs. C. H. Pierce, of Denver.

A large photograph of a gathering of the officers of Colorado's militia forces that had been mustered into the United States service early in the summer of 1916, together with several civilians. The picture was made in the following August, on the rifle range near our city of Golden. Given to the Society by Tishler & Langer, of Denver.

A photograph of Prof. George L. Cannon and of his brother, Wilbur F. Cannon, both of Denver, and which was made in the year 1876. Given to the Society by Prof. Cannon.

Twenty-seven wood-engravings of views and scenes in Denver and elsewhere in the Pike's Peak country in our pioneer times. Fifteen of the engravings were used to illustrate articles on the "Pike's Peak Gold Excitement," published in Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper, New York, in April, May, June, and August, 1859; one of a view of our Gregory Gulch, drawn by Albert D. Richardson, in May, 1859; three which were used to illustrate articles published in Harper's Weekly, New York, in May, and in August, 1859; three which were used to illustrate articles published in Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper in March, April, and August, 1860; and five which were used to illustrate articles published in Harper's Weekly in January, March, and October, 1866. The pictures were purchased by the Society from a collector located in Arlington, Massachusetts. From these engravings, photographic enlargements were made better to adapt the views and scenes to the purpose of exhibiting.

A photograph of a view near the head of Wanamacker Creek, in our Saguache County, and which is believed by some to be the place where John C. Fremont's ill-fated expedition, of 1848, came to its tragic end. Given to the Society by Mr. A. B. Hardin, of Denver.

A photographic enlargement from a print from a photo-engraving of a view of the Catholic Church—"Our Lady of Guadalupe"—in our town of Conejos, built in 1858, and which is said to be the oldest church-building in Colorado. The original of this is among the Society's historical collections.

A photographic enlargement from a photograph, made in 1863, of a view at the intersection of Fifteenth and Blake streets, in Denver, after a heavy fall of snow. The original of this is among the Society's historical collections.

A photograph of a view, made in the morning of May 14, 1912, at the intersection of Sixteenth Avenue and Clarkson Street, in Denver, at the cessation of a snowfall of six inches. The picture was made and given to the Society by Miss Edith W. Smith, of Denver.

Two photo-films of differing views of the monument at the grave of General James W. Denver, in Sugar Grove Cemetery, at Wilmington, Ohio. The photographs were made in August, 1916, by Miss Edith W. Smith, of Denver, and by her given to the Society.

A photographic copy of a photograph (six by eight inches) of the oil portrait of Pocahontas and of her son, Thomas Rolfe, in Heachem Hall, the ancestral home of the Rolfe family in England. Copied from one of the original photographs owned by the Curator of the Society.

A photograph of Dr. Charles Alexander Eastman (Ohiyesa, the Winner), a Santee Sioux Indian. Dr. Eastman, a highly-accomplished man, is the foremost living representative of his race.

One hundred and twenty photographs of Indian people of the Great Plains and the Rocky Mountain country. In this collection the following-named tribes are represented: Apache, Arapahoe, Arikara, Cheyenne, Comanche, Crow, Jicarilla (Athapascan), Kansa, Kiowa, Mandan, Navajo, Nez Perce, Omaha, Oto, Pueblo, Shoshoni, Sioux, Ute, and Wichita. In frequent instances a given photograph portrays more than one person. The collection was made by the Society.

Nineteen photographic enlargements from lithographs and photo-engravings of views of buildings of the Pueblo Indians of New Mexico. These are, viz.: the remains of the ancient Pueblo of Zuni, as they appeared in 1853; the modern Pueblo of Zuni; the terraces of Zuni; another view of the terraces of Zuni; the court of Zuni; an interior part of Zuni; a view of the Pueblo of Acoma; the Hopi Pueblo of Oraibe; the Hopi Pueblo of Wal-pi; the Pueblo of Taos; the Pueblo of Santa Clara; the Pueblo of San Juan; the Pueblo of San Felipe; the Pueblo of Nambe; the Pueblo of Jemez; the Pueblo of Cochiti; the Pueblo of San Ildefonso; and the Pueblo of Sia.

Forty-six photographic enlargements, from photographs of views and of objects in the part of the southwestern section of our State that once was occupied by the "Cliff Dwellers." These pictures, many of which are large ones, were prepared from the Society's resources further to illustrate the "Cliff Dweller" division of our ethnological collections.

Twelve photographs of skulls of "Cliff Dwellers," printed from negatives made from examples in the Society's ethnological collections, for, and under the personal direction of, Dr. M. H. Cryer, of the University of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia. With Dr. Cryer's kindly approval, the photographers, Tishler & Langer, of Denver, prepared these photographs (which will be useful for study purposes) and gave them to the Society.

Two photographic enlargements from photographs of two groups of petroglyphs on a bluff on Rock Creek, in our Rio Grande County, and about eight miles southwest of the town of Monte Vista. The originals of these are owned by Mr. L. A. Norland, of La Jara, Colorado, and who permitted the Society to make these enlargements from them.

A photographic enlargement from a wood-engraving from a chronological and historical record kept by Sioux Indians, and showing, by symbols, the principal event of each year from 1799 to 1870, inclusive. The original of this is among the Society's historical collections. In this document the Indians recorded the huge host of meteors that fell in November, 1833, as the foremost occurrence of that year.

Four photographic enlargements from wood-engravings from pictographs recording early achievements in the career of Sitting Bull, a great leader of the Sioux. In the first record "he kills a white man;" in the second "he kills an Indian enemy;" in the third "he steals a drove of horses;" and in the fourth "he storms a Crow Indian encampment and takes thirty scalps." The originals of these are among the Society's historical collections.

A photographic enlargement from a wood-engraving from a pictograph, made by Big Back, a Cheyenne, of General R. S. Mackenzie's fight with Cheyenne Indians in the Big Horn Mountains, on November 25, 1876. The original of this is among the Society's historical collections.

A colored lithograph (eighteen by twenty-six inches) of an attempt to depict General George A. Custer's "last stand" in his disastrous battle with a great host of Indians, on June 25, 1876, on the Little Big Horn River, in a locality which is in the southeastern section of the present State of Montana. The picture was purchased by the Society.

Three photographic enlargements—two from wood-engravings and one from a photograph—of views of villages or encampments of Indians in the old-time "Far West." The originals of these are among the Society's historical collections.

A photographic enlargement from a wood-engraving depicting a great council held at North Platte, Nebraska, between Generals Sherman, Harney, Terry, and Augur, and a number of Sioux, Arapahoe, and Cheyenne chieftains. The original of this is among the Society's historical collections.

A photographic enlargement from a wood-engraving depicting a successful war-party of Sioux Indians dancing the "Scalp Dance" in celebration of a victory. The original of this is among the Society's historical collections.

A photographic enlargement from a wood-engraving depicting the "Great Medicine Dance" of men of the Sioux, and which was an exhausting trial of physical suffering and endurance. The original of this is among the Society's historical collections.

A photographic enlargement from a wood-engraving depicting another endurance-dance of men of the Sioux, and in which extreme torture was self-inflicted by each of the dancers. The original of this is among the Society's historical collections.

A photographic enlargement from a wood-engraving depicting the stealthiness of Indians in a night attack on an encampment of a wagon-train. The original of this is among the Society's historical collections.

A photographic enlargement from a wood-engraving depicting an attack on an Overland Stage-coach by Indians of the Great Plains. The original of this is among the Society's historical collections.

A photographic enlargement from a wood-engraving depicting a method of the Indians of the Great Plains of disposing their dead, by placing the bodies upon branches of trees. The original of this is among the Society's historical collections.

Two photographic enlargements from wood-engravings depicting the fatal tortures inflicted by Indians of the Great Plains on officers and troopers of the United States Army. The originals of these are among the Society's historical collections.

Three photographic enlargements from wood-engravings depicting engagements between Indians of the Great Plains and detachments of the United States Army, in the prolonged Indian War, which broke out in the autumn of 1864. The originals of these are among the Society's historical collections.

A goodly number of additions to the Society's collection of historical objects were received during the term, and of which some description follows here:

The regimental flag of the First Regiment of Colorado Volunteer Infantry in our war with Spain. Given to the Society by the organization of Spanish-American War Veterans of Colorado. The flag had hard service in the Philippine Islands, and is much tattered.

The regimental banner of the First Regiment of Colorado Volunteer Infantry in our war with Spain. Given to the Society by the organization of Spanish-American War Veterans of Colorado. The banner was with the regiment throughout the latter's service, and is in fair condition.

An X-ray tube, of a very early form, used by Dr. G. H. Stover, of Denver, in New York City in February, 1897, and in Denver in July, 1897. Given to the Society by Dr. Stover.

A piece of cotton sheeting, from the first bolt of the first fabric made in the Overland Cotton Mills, at Denver, and which was obtained and preserved by Hon. Henry R. Wolcott, of Denver. Given to the Society by Mrs. J. F. Vaile, of Denver.

A portion (in a phial) of the first beet-sugar commercially manufactured in Colorado, and which was made in a newly-built factory, at Grand Junction, on November 19, 1899. Given to the Society by Mr. Ralph Voorhees, of Denver.

Eleven ox-shoes (recorded as a unit), which were picked up from time to time, eastward from Denver, on the pioneer "Cut-off Road" to the South Platte River, by the donor. Given to the Society by Mr. E. A. Glascock, of Denver.

A silk political-badge, of the presidential campaign of 1856. "Fremont ad Dayton." "Free Speech, a Free Press, Freemen, Freedom, and Fremont." Given to the Society by Dr. L. E. George, of Denver.

A Colt revolver, found in the year 1900 on the site of the White River Indian Agency, which is in our Rio Blanco County. Given to the Society by General U. S. Hollister, of Denver.

A military coat and a military cap which were parts of the uniform worn by the donor when, as a student, he was a member of the Jarvis Hall Cadets, of the University Schools at Golden, Colorado, in 1875-76. Given to the Society by Prof. George L. Cannon, of Denver.

A large bronze medal awarded to the donor at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, at St. Louis, in 1904, for the excellence of his Wealthy Apples exhibited at the Exposition, and which were grown in our Larimer County. Given to the Society by Mr. William A. Moon, of Fort Collins, Colorado.

A large silver medal awarded to the donor, at the National Irrigation Exposition at Pueblo, Colorado, in 1910, in recognition of the excellence of his services as a juror in judging exhibits of Colorado fruit at the Exposition. Given to the Society by Mr. William A. Moon, of Fort Collins, Colorado.

A delegate's badge worn at the Thirty-ninth National Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, at Denver, in 1905. Given to the Society by General U. S. Hollister, of Denver.

A McKinley political-badge, of the presidential campaign of 1894, and which bears a portrait of Mr. McKinley. Given to the Society by Prof. George L. Cannon, of Denver.

A guest's ticket to the Democratic National Convention which was held in Denver, in July, 1908. Given to the Society by Prof. George L. Cannon, of Denver.

A cast-iron boot-jack, which was brought into our city of Idaho Springs in 1869, by the father of the donor. Given to the Society by Prof. George L. Cannon, of Denver.

A pair of iron boot-hooks, which was brought into our city of Idaho Springs in 1869, by the father of the donor. Given to the Society by Prof. George L. Cannon, of Denver.

A metate, found by the donor near our city of Longmont in 1881, and which, when discovered, was partly buried, in unplowed ground. Given to the Society by Mr. J. B. Adams, of Denver.

An iron arrow-head, found by the donor about ten miles west of Brighton, Colorado, in 1901. Given to the Society by Mr. W. G. Workman, of Denver.

A stone implement, the use of which has not yet been determined, found by the donor about five miles east of Platteville, Colorado, in 1911. Given to the Society by Mr. W. G. Workman, of Denver.

An agate arrow-head, found by the donor about five miles east of Platteville, Colorado, in 1911. Given to the Society by Mr. W. G. Workman, of Denver.

A stone axe, grooved for attaching a handle, found by the donor near the city of Davenport, Iowa, in 1910. Given to the Society by Cedric Kaub, of Denver.

Of the 355 historical pictures—of persons, of places, and of things—acquired during the biennial term, 283 were placed in frames and added to the Society's public exhibits. Forty-five of these pictures are photographic enlargements from photographs made in the "Cliff Dweller" section of our State; and moreover, fourteen exceptionally-large photographs of views in the same section, and which long had been in the Society's collections, were framed. One hundred and seventeen of the photographs of Indians and of photographic enlargements from photographs of subjects relating to them that were acquired during the term were put into frames; and sixty-one of such pictures, which were accessions in previous terms, also were framed. The remainder of the pictures acquired in the term and framed are photographic enlargements from photographs of persons, of places, and of things; and besides these, twenty-four others previously accessioned also were framed.

Furthermore, a revision was made of a considerable number of the Society's historical pictures that had been framed in former times. In this there were some repairs; many additions, by hand-lettering, to the historical information which these exhibits had borne; and the replacement of faded typewritten labels by hand-lettered forms.

We have no means of determining day by day the number of persons who visit the State Museum Building; but it is probable that the total of visitors during the year 1916 exceeded more than 100,000.

The series of lectures, in the assembly room, on historical and on scientific subjects, established by the Society in the second year of the biennial term as a permanent part of its activities, have been very popular; and in several instances the attendance was greater than the assembly room could accommodate.

Respectfully submitted,

J. C. SMILEY,
Curator..
